You and your family should know two ways out of every room in your home — especially the sleeping areas.

Decide who is responsible for helping very young children or older adults get out of your home.

Designate a place to meet outside, away from your home and in front of your home, if possible. Your meeting place should be something that doesn't move such as a tree or the community mailbox.

Practice your escape plan with your family at least two times a year.

Get started making your plan with the Home Escape Plan Grid. (Page 2)
